Paul Davis Restoration offices donate to Connecting with Seniors Inc., Home Adaptation Project

Union, NJ – October 26, 2010 - Patrick Wildridge, Paul Davis Restoration office owner, has announced volunteer support from Paul Davis office owners in New Jersey for the non-profit organization Connecting with Seniors Inc. The Pt. Pleasant, NJ non-profit recently developed a program called the Home Adaptation Project (HAP) which will help area seniors with improvements to their homes. The Paul Davis offices will donate structural repairs, restoration and remodeling services through the company's Restoring America community service program.

According to Wildridge, Restoring America is a nationwide initiative that assists individuals and organizations in need with home and property improvements.

“We are pleased to work with Paul Davis along with a number of supporters and sponsors. Our collaborative efforts will combine fall prevention education and assessments for home improvements. We will be proactive with home safety modifications to help older adults remain in their homes longer,” said Shirley Gilinsky, founder and executive director of Connecting with Seniors. “Statistically, one in every three adults who are 65 years of age and older falls each year. The new program will help to improve residential environments that may cause accidents and falls in the home,” she said. “Hopefully, this program will also reduce the medical costs that are associated with falls.”

The Paul Davis team will participate in the HAP program along with The Home Depot, Harper Technology Group, Realstaging Inc., Prudential Zack Realty, American Red Cross, Love INC., Empowerability, Inc., and Comfort Keepers, among others.

Paul Davis in New Jersey donates professional restoration services and assistance to organizations throughout the state including the New Jersey Firefighter's Mutual Benevolent Association (NJFMBA) and supports the organization and its members through a number of programs specifically, Autism New Jersey and Eden Autism Services. The company also provides donated services to the NJFMBA for Saint Barnabas Burn Foundation's The Children's Burn Camp in Union, CT. For more information, contact Patrick Wildridge at 908.276-6161 or email pwildridge@pdr-usa.net.
